Best dish contenders

Yanceyville House Restaurant (699 U.S. 158 West; 694-4225; www.yanceyvillage.com) in Yanceyville and Bistro 42 (405-P E. Dixie Drive; 625-3663) in Asheboro are among the finalists for Best Dish in North Carolina, an annual competition presented by the N.C. Department of Agriculture and Our State Magazine.

Restaurants that enter the statewide competition, which recognizes efforts to incorporate North Carolina products and ingredients into meals, must feature and promote a special menu for four weeks.

Wings take awards

The judges spoke, and Chen's Express (1708-A Stanley Road and 4414 Lawndale Drive) in Greensboro swept the awards at the recent Wingfest, an annual benefit for The Arc of High Point.

Chen's walked away with the Sweet, Hot, Exotic and Best Overall awards. Pretty good for an impromptu sauce.

Chen's cook Brian Chen didn't have an exotic sauce when he signed on for the competition. So he concocted one on the morning of the event.

The sauce not only won the Exotic award, but also was favored for the Hot category, as well.

Additional winners were J.P. Looney's (3021 Spring Garden St., Greensboro; 2213 Oak Ridge Road, Oak Ridge; 3793 Samet Drive, High Point) for best BBQ, and George's Pizza and Subs (6310-F Old Oak Ridge Road, Greensboro) got the People's Choice award.
